How to manage a safe return to work after the COVID-19 lockdown

INTRODUCTION

For businesses and organisations that have had to limit or suspend their activities during the COVID-19 lockdown, the prospects of some of those restrictions being eased will represent an important first step on the path back to normality.

However, leadership teams will also be very aware that this will be a difficult path to tread, particularly with regard to workplace safety.

A lax approach to health and hygiene in these early days and weeks after lockdown could be hugely damaging to your organisation and to the nationwide effort to stop the spread of the coronavirus, potentially creating the risk of a second wave of infections and lockdown measures being re-imposed.

As such, any return to work after lockdown needs to be carefully and safely managed, with an emphasis on high standards of worker hygiene, continued social distancing and strict control over working protocols.

In order to help businesses prepare, we've put together a selection of easy-to-implement product solutions and some basic tips on how to ensure your organisation is able to resume work as efficiently as possible, while continuing to keep your workers safe and protected from the threat that COVID-19 still poses.

This guide includes newly developed solutions along with some familiar and trusted workplace safety products, to help you quickly and confidently adapt to new ways of working; and don't forget there are 1,000's more solutions online, underpinned by our commitment to delivering safety & value for every type of workplace.

If you cannot find what you are looking for or wish to customise some of the solutions on offer, please don't hesitate to get in touch on 0800 043 0161 or via sales@safetybuyer.com.

Kevin Rowe, Managing Director

PLAN OUT EVERYTHING YOU'LL NEED

Well-organised business owners and senior managers should be taking this opportunity to put thorough and careful plans in place for exactly how any return to work will be safely managed, looking at what measures will be needed and how this will be accomplished.

As with any workplace safety matter, this should start with a thorough risk assessment, followed by the creation of a comprehensive, forward-looking plan. Possible steps include:

- » Carrying out a deep clean of the premises before reopening
- » Organising regular cleaning and disinfection of the work space on a regular basis
- » Reorganising your working areas to create greater distance between members of staff
- » Providing appropriate PPE to minimise the risk of infection

COVID-19 SITE SAFETY SIGNAGE AND SANITISATION POINTS

CAREFULLY CONTROL WHO ENTERS THE WORKPLACE

A complete return to "business as usual" will not be possible straight away. While the risk of infection is still high, it's important to ensure that access to your working space is provided only when necessary, which may mean limiting the number of visitors or on-site customers you allow inside.

To achieve this, consider the following steps:

- » Place strict limits on the number of people allowed inside at any given time
- » Stick to phone calls and video conferencing for meetings that do not need to happen on-site
- » Set up drop-off and collection points for essential deliveries
- » Invest in protective plexiglass screens to protect staff who need to interact with customers
- » Use floor signs and markings to control the flow of foot traffic

STAY FOCUSED ON HYGIENE #3

Maintaining a high standard of hygiene and cleanliness remains the highest priority for preventing the spread of COVID-19. Staff are likely to be aware of the need for regular hand-washing by now, but it's still advisable to make sure this message is properly hammered home at this crucial time.

As an employer, you can help to reinforce this by doing the following:

- » Using safety signs and notices to remind staff of the proper way to wash and dry their hands, and the need to dispose of tissues immediately after a cough or sneeze
- » Providing disinfectant sprays, wipes and hand gel across the workplace to make it easy for staff to regularly clean their hands, belongings and gear
- » Replace communal or shared tools with personal equipment wherever possible
- » Introduce no-touch doors, switches or other fittings where feasible

Hand hygiene has always been a key safety concern in the workplace, but the coronavirus outbreak has turned regular handwashing into a key public health priority, and an essential prerequisite for businesses to keep operating safely.

Our hand sanitising stations address this need by mounting a hand gel dispensing point on a sturdy Correx backing board, featuring the latest government-approved safety advice. Choose from branded and unbranded options with 1 Litre and 5 Litre dispensing.

HIGH IMPACT GRAPHICS & SIGNAGE TO IMPLEMENT SOCIAL DISTANCING POLICIES

SOCIAL DISTANCING

Social distancing has become an everyday reality due to COVID-19, and this will continue in the early months of the post-lockdown recovery. Staying safe at work will mean sticking to a minimum two-metre distance between individuals, so it is sensible to look now at ways in which this can be achieved.

Consider the following tips:

- » Rearrange desks and working areas to provide greater distance between staff members
- » Continue to favour digital communication over face-to-face meetings and physical paperwork
- » If your workplace deals with direct transactions, continue to encourage the use of contactless payments over cash handling
- » Stagger shift patterns and break times to limit the number of workers on-site at any given time
- » Make use of floor signs and markings to demonstrate the minimum distance that people should be keeping from each other

250MM SOCIAL DISTANCING FLOOR GRAPHICS

SOCIAL DISTANCING FLOOR TAPE - 75MM X 33M

Low-cost, high-impact floor tape for marking pedestrian routes & promoting safe working distances

- » Printed using high quality polypropylene tape with acrylic adhesive
- » This tape is unlined, so will wear over-time, but offers a cost-effective short-term solution
- » Will adhere to most clean, dry and smooth surfaces
- » Adhesion can be improved by using floor primer on more porous surfaces
- » Our 3" or 75mm tape width is just that bit more prominent than the 48mm / 2" options you might see

Top tip - we've used this within our own warehouse and did a thorough job of sweeping, mopping and allowing the floor to dry before application. Results were good, and we decided we didn't need to use a primer, we'll just re-apply a few areas that will get more traffic if needs be.

HAZARD FLOOR MARKING TAPE

- » Durable PVC line marking tape, ideal for high traffic environments
- » Cost-effective solution to provide clean, durable and easy-to-apply line marking
- » 50mm x 33m roll length
- » Typically used indoors, but would also provide a reasonable 'temporary' solution (COVID-19) for managing outdoor queues and social distancing
- » For best results, always apply to clean, smooth and dry surfaces
- » Floor primer would improve adhesion on porous surfaces

KEEPING A CLEAR AND CONSISTENT MESSAGE

VISUAL MANAGEMENT & SAFETY COMMUNICATIONS #6

As with any health and safety plan, your COVID-19 policies will be much more effective with the complete buy-in of every member of staff. This means consulting with everyone involved to make sure individual needs are being met, and that all workers understand what is expected of them. Possible steps include:

- » Involving the whole company in safety-related decision-making from an early stage, ensuring everyone feels comfortable and cared for
- » Identifying which staff members will need to return first, and which may need special protection or continued remote working arrangements due to vulnerability
- » Providing clear guidance and explanations for any new safety measures, and giving staff an opportunity to provide feedback on any problem areas
